

ADVANCING
NATIVE
MISSIONS

A woman with braided hair, wearing a red jacket and a white apron, is focused on sewing at a black vintage-style sewing machine. She is in a room with colorful fabrics hanging in the background. The bottom half of the image is a dark purple gradient containing text.

Help a mom support her family

Women sustain families, churches, and communities worldwide – often with limited resources, job opportunities, and rights, especially in Muslim and Hindu mission fields.

With a home-based business, a Christian woman in the mission field can support her family, give her children more opportunities, and stand out as a light for the Gospel in her community.

The gift of a sewing machine can help make this dream a reality for 100 women this International Women's Day. Give one today for $120.

advancingnativemissions.com/sewing